

JOURNAL
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Monday - 29 April 1963

1. [] Jay Sourwine, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, telephoned to inquire if we had any information on [] who floats around Washington associating with various refugee groups. I said we would check this and advise.

2. [] Jay Sourwine called saying he had a request from a newspaperman to pass on a message of warning to the Agency. []

3. [] Met briefly with Mrs. Janet Dennis, Case Secretary, Senator Clair Engle's (D., Calif.) office, concerning [] Mrs. Dennis advised that she had referred [] to the Agency Inspector General and requested advice whether there was anything further the Agency could do on the Doctor's behalf. She also indicated that she had suspected [] was associated with the Agency on a provisional basis from the facts he supplied her, particularly the very short period of time between his original contact with the Agency and the time he reported in Washington. (Mrs. Dennis herself was formerly in the State Department and is familiar with security clearances and procedures.) Advised Mrs. Dennis that the Agency felt in this case it had done as much as could be done for the Doctor. In closing Mrs. Dennis noted that although it might have been due to the present state of [] health, [] had failed to keep at least one employment interview appointment her office had arranged for him. See journal of 19 April, item 2.

4. [] Returned to Mr. Julian G. Sourwine, Chief Counsel, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, his notes concerning a proposed defector asylum bill.

STAT 5. [] Ben Mandel, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee staff, called and asked if we had representative authoritative statements on the subject of Soviet military doctrine. He is interested in statements by individuals such as Malinofsky and Vershinin during the period 1962-1963. We are checking with [] on this. STAT

STAT 6. [] Picked up from House Foreign Affairs Committee transcripts of the first two days of State Department's testimony on amendments to the Foreign Service Act.
